LAND OF VINES AND TOWERS

Winegrowing in Socuéllamos dates back to the 1st century BC, a period to which two amphorae found at the Ibero-Roman sites of El Bernardo and Torre de Vejezate belong. Since then, vine cultivation and wine production have left a legacy that's reflected in the life, landscape and culture of the municipality.

In this town of hospitable, hard-working people, you can enjoy countless activities linked to its culture and wine throughout the year.

A SEA OF VINES

In 1298, Juan Osórez, Master of the Order of Santiago, granted Socuéllamos privileges which freed those who settled and planted vines from paying tithes and taxes. This favour was later confirmed by Henry, Duke of Villena in 1440 and by the Catholic Monarchs of Spain in the General Chapter of Tordesillas, as well as by Holy Roman Emperor Charles V in 1527. These privileges remained for several centuries, in an unprecedented commitment to repopulate the area, which has since become the sea of vines you see today.

LAND OF GREAT COMMANDERS

that introduced the development of the vines and shared their passion for wine production.

The Great Commanders of the Order of Santiago - whose encomienda was located in Socuéllamos for many years and led by the Houses of Mexia, Mendoza and Zuñiga - were key in promoting winegrowing. They introduced the development of the vines and left their mark on its heritage and history.

The town currently offers a wide range of wine tourism activities, from small family-owned wineries to large facilities with the latest technology. Thanks to the know-how of its winemakers, Socuéllamos wines have distinctive characteristics which, along with the Wine Tower Museum, make it a unique destination to explore the tranquil streets, meet its friendly people, not to mention sample the local cuisine: the perfect pairing and a benchmark of quality.

Throughout the year, MANCHAVINO organises a range of activities aimed at professionals and anyone who wants to learn about wine in a fun, enjoyable way.

THE WINERIES OF SOCUÉLLAMOS

É

After centuries of challenges, including major climate change, wine cultivation and winemaking in Socuéllamos reached new heights, with a boom in wine export thanks to the arrival of the railway in 1868 and the Great French Wine Blight, resulting in a considerable number of wineries existing in Socuéllamos at the beginning of the 20th century. In 1934 the first municipal winery was created, and the Cristo de la Vega Cooperative was set up in 1955, one of the largest in Europe.

Tower Museum

LA MANCHA WINE TOWER

The ideal vantage point to admire the La Mancha plain and its glorious sunsets. Set in the former railway station, a historic location closely linked to the development of its wineries, is a building crowned by an eleven-storey viewing tower. Boasting a striking avant-garde design with highly innovative architectural features, here visitors can take in the La Mancha plain, the immensity of those horizons that make its sunsets so famous.

WINE TOWER MUSEUM

With its eleven-storey viewpoint, the Wine Tower Museum allows you to discover and enjoy the history of Socuéllamos and its people, with wine as the protagonist, in a unique setting where tradition and the avant-garde come together.

Tastings, workshops and various activities throughout the year complete the museum's offer, where you can learn all about the wines of La Mancha.

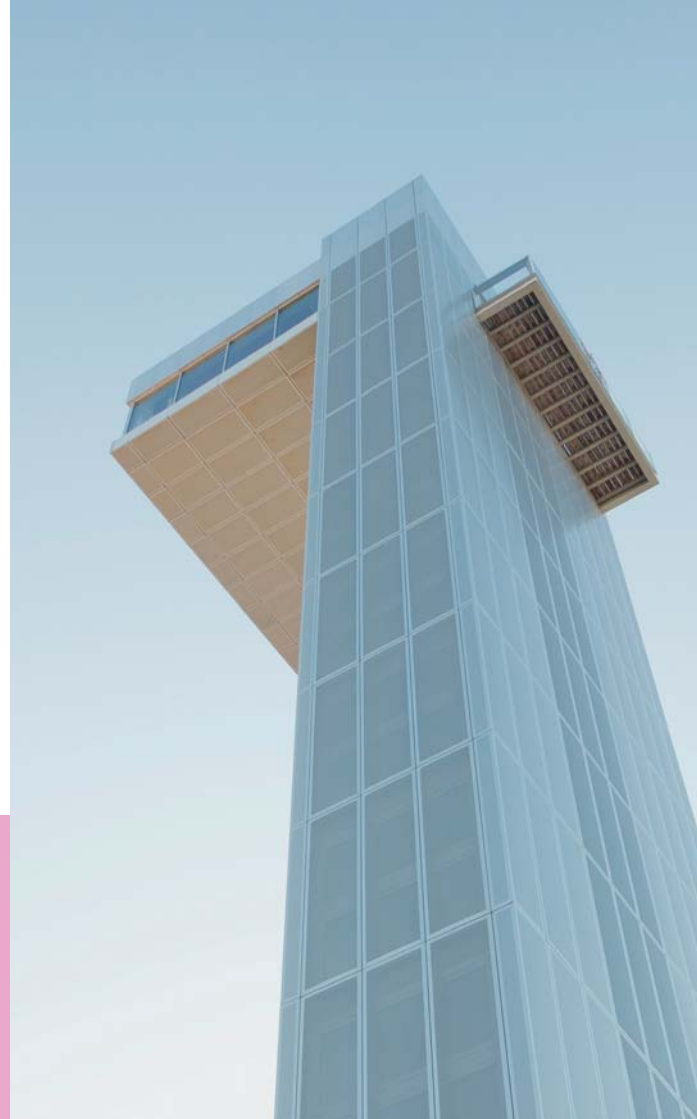

AN UNMISSABLE VISIT TO DISCOVER THE WORLD OF WINE

Wine has given Socuéllamos its unique character and to show its appreciation, the municipality wanted to build a place where wine and wine culture would be at the service of locals and visitors alike. A place that would highlight the major contributor to its economy, the product ingrained in its roots and driving its future, bringing together growers, communicators, tasters, consumers and wine lovers. A unique place to share this passion in a building designed as a tribute to the main product of La Mancha and its people.
